JUDGES AND CRITERIA

General Effect – Visual

This category is judged on how the band's entire musical presentation is coordinated to depict a unified production. The band's emotional artistry and professional effectiveness of their show are key aspects that the judge is looking for. The difficulty, variety and interpretation and coordination of the visual and musical elements are other elements in how the band is judged. This judge is located in the press box.

Music Execution

The technical accuracy in musicianship, technique, and musical content of individual performers and ensembles will be judged. This judge can be on the field or in the press box.

Visual Execution

The individual performer will be judged in this category. This judge is evaluating marching accuracy, posture and poise, and instrument control. Overall, marching excellence, technical content and construction of the drill will also be judged in this category. This judge is located on the field.

Percussion

The battery and pit are judged in this category. Uniformity, clarity, precision, and demand of the performer are taken into consideration. This judge is located on the field.

General Effect – Music

This judge determines how well the marching formations (drill) interpret the music as well as all the visual aspects of the show. The band is also judged on how well they communicate their intent to the audience. This judge is located in the press box.

Color Guard

The color guard is judged on their performance effectiveness, coordination, content and demand. This judge is located in the press box.

The band's final score is determined after the scores are combined and penalties are deducted. All bands must be in competition for a minimum of 8 minutes to a maximum of 11 minutes. Stop time can negatively affect another judging caption (i.e. general effect). The timing and judging will begin with the first note of music or the first steps of the band proper. The band must complete its performance within 11 minutes. The timing and penalty judging will cease when the band has cleared the field. From the conclusion of their performance, bands will have a maximum of two minutes to clear the competition field.

GOOD LUCK TO ALL THE BANDS
